HOW UNCLE SAM USED DRAFT IN CIVIL WAR TIME

(Cleveland Press)

A notice summoning Michael Fisel to the colors is preserved by John G. Conder, 3522 E. 88th street, as a memento of the last war in which the United States used the draft to provide military forces.

Conder is son-in-law of Fisel, who fought in the Union army from 1862 until the end of the Civil war. Fisel died several years ago.

The notice, dated Oct. 2, 1862, ordered Fisel to report five days later at Canfield, O., near his home in Mahoning county. From Canfield the men marched to Camp Cleveland, Cuyahoga county.

Each man was advised to bring his own blanket.

Here is the notice as it appears on the faded original:

NOTICE TO DRAFTED PERSONS

State of Ohio, Mahoning County, ss. To Michael Fisel, of Beaver township, in said County:

You are hereby notified that you have been called and drafted, in pursuance of the orders of the War Department of the United States, regulating the enrolling and drafting of the Militia force, and that the place of rendezvous of the said drafted Militia force for the said county, is at Camp Cleveland, in the County of Cuyahoga, and State of Ohio.

You are therefore ordered and required, under the penalty of the law regulating the same, to be and appear at the courthouse in the town of Canfield, in said County of Mahoning, on Tuesday, the 7th day of October, A. D. 1862, at 10 o'clock A. M., preparatory to taking up your line of march to said place of rendezvous. Transportation for all necessary baggage will be furnished by the Government. Given under my hand at Canfield, Ohio, this second day of October, A. D. 1862.

F. G. SERVIS, Drafting Commissioner of Mahoning County, Ohio.

N. B.—As suggested in General Order No. 121, each man is advised to furnish his own blanket. The regulation military blanket is 84 by 66 inches and weighs 5 pounds, the cost of which will be paid by the Government.

BIG CIRCUS COMING

If all the good things said about John Robinson's Ten Big Shows this season by our exchanges are true and we have no doubt they are, the amusement-goers of Youngstown and its environs can look forward to an unusual treat in the circus line on May 8.

According to reports this will undoubtedly prove the most important circus event in local history. These augmented shows require four trains of double length railroad cars to transport the mammoth aggregation from city to city.

The unusually large number of wild animals in the menagerie and the additional wonderful collection of interesting Negroes and curiosities from many lands in the museum department, make all former circus exhibitions here seem pigmy in comparison. So, here's to circus day! A bright weather day it is hoped, when the decision to pitch his tent in Youngstown on May 8 will find ample justification in a smashing record turn out.

The big street parade will take place at 10 o'clock on the morning of the exhibition.

MEETING TO ARRANGE FOR MEMORIAL DAY

The citizens of the Village are called to a meeting at town hall, Thursday, May 10, 8:30 p. m. eastern time, for the purpose of making the necessary plans and program for the proper celebration of Memorial day. An organization of the D. A. R. of Youngstown has expressed a desire to assist both in the plans for and the public services of Memorial day, that special honors may be shown to the soldiers of the Revolutionary war buried within our Village cemetery. A large attendance of men and women is desired, such as will indicate the patriotic spirit and sentiment of a loyal community.

JAMES B. JONES, Mayor.

Had a Very Bad Cough

This letter should interest every reader: "Last winter I had a very bad cough. I used medicines, but they did me no good. I took one bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar and it cured me. (Signed) V. DeKester, Amberg, Wis." No substitute is as good as Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, croup and whooping cough. F. A. Morris, Canfield, adv.

GOOD COMPANY DISHES.

When cooking peas always save the pods for soup, or boil them and strain the liquid, using it to cook the peas in, making a much finer flavored dish. For variety add a bunch of mint to green peas when cooking, this adds a delicate flavor.

Always save the water in which vegetables are cooked either for a sauce to serve with them or to add to the soup stock.

As valuable mineral salts are soluble in water and are lost if this is thrown away.

Walnut Ice.—Cook to a thread one cupful of granulated sugar, one cupful of water and pour it over three well-beaten egg whites. To this add one pint of whipped cream, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one cupful of chopped walnut meats, folding them into the cream with care. Pack in ice and salt and leave until frozen, then cut in squares to serve.

Hindu Salad.—Shred some crisp white lettuce leaves and arrange them upon salad plates. On these lay four slices of tomato, cover two with chopped celery and onion, the others with finely minced watercress. Pour over a plain French dressing.

Bishop's Bread.—Beat three eggs and add a cupful of sugar, beating until the sugar is well dissolved; add a pinch of salt and flavoring of lemon or vanilla. Then add two cupfuls of flour, sifted, with two teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar and a teaspoonful of soda; a little of the flour may be reserved to cover a cupful of raisins.

Spread in a thin sheet in a buttered tin and cover with a cupful of unblanched almonds, carefully cut in strips or in halves. Cut in oblongs or squares before it is cold.

Rolls Beefsteak.—Beat a round steak well and spread with any well-liked stuffing used for fowl. Roll up neatly and tie to keep it in shape. Put it into a dripping pan with a little water and a teaspoonful of vinegar, basting it frequently. When ready to serve spread a tablespoonful of butter over it and make a thickened gravy with the liquor in the pan. Cut as jelly roll when serving.

DISHES FOR OCCASIONS.

These dishes may offer suggestions to the housewife even if not exactly followed.

Fish a la Vinaigrette.—Boil shad, mackerel or white fish in salted water. When cooked, put into a dish and pour over it two cupfuls of mild vinegar while the fish is hot. When it is cold pour the vinegar into a bowl, add to it two teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce and salt and pepper to taste. Pour all this upon the fish. When ready to serve chop fine two hard-boiled eggs, one small onion, two tablespoonfuls each of parsley and celery finely minced, one boiled beet, and spread this mixture over the fish.

Soft Custard.—Beat two eggs slightly, add to a pint of milk, a half cupful of sugar, an eighth of a teaspoonful of salt and a half teaspoonful of grated lemon peel, or a little nutmeg, cinnamon or a half teaspoonful of any flavoring extract. Mix well and put into custard cups, set them in a pan of hot water and bake until the custard is set. This makes four small custards.

Apricot Blanc Manger.—Soak some dried apricots all night; stew them with sufficient sugar to sweeten them, and then add a cupful to a quart of blanc mange when cooking. Just before this is turned into a mold add two teaspoonfuls of vanilla and serve it very cold with thick cream.

Jam Cake.—Cream a half cupful of butter, add a cupful of sugar; add the yolks of two eggs and two-thirds of a cupful of sour milk to which has been added a teaspoonful of soda. Sift two cupfuls of flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder; add one teaspoonful each of cinnamon, allspice, and cloves with the other ingredients. Then add the beaten whites of three eggs and stir in one cupful of blackberry jam or any other kind of jam. Bake in three layers and put soft frosting for filling in between and on top of the cake.

Salmon Omelet.—Take a large can of salmon, drained and chopped fine; add four beaten eggs, a pinch of salt and a dash of pepper. Mix well and fry by spoonfuls in a little hot fat. Serve on lettuce leaves hot or cold.

HE FORGOT ETHICS

But the Doctor Understood Boys, Which Was More Important.

His Talk of the Old Fishing Hole and the Summer Camping Trip Succeeded Where Medicine Failed.

The doctor walked slowly upstairs. The little boy's illness was not yielding to treatment as he would have wished. He had been doing all that medicine would do for the boy, but the delay in calling him had given the sickness such a start that he had made little progress in checking it. So he went upstairs with a heavy heart. Jimmie smiled as the young doctor came into his room. Jimmie was the smiling kind, though he had found it hard to be cheerful.

The doctor had many other calls to make, and he left soon with the promise to call again that night. When he came again the little patient was worse, though he probably did not realize it. The doctor took his pulse and his temperature and asked the usual questions of his mother. Then he did a highly unethical thing. But he understood boys and especially the one before him.

"Jimmie," he said, "you and I are going to fight hard to get you well, but we are going to get you well. The boy smiled; the doctor had touched the right chord. "Nobody but you and I can do it. Mother can't help you; neither can sister or brother or father. I am going to come to see you twice a day. We have got to get you in good shape so that you will be all ready to go camping this summer with the rest of the boys."

"You remember that little red eye hole down by those willows where I stopped to watch you fish when I came by in the automobile? Well, I drove past there last week and it looks to me like it is going to be better than ever. A big log has floated down there and you can sit on it in the shade of the willows and never get a bit hot, even in July. But before you go fishing you will have to get well. I think we can have you out of bed in two weeks."

The little chap in the bed looked hard at the doctor. He was only ten years old, and it is hard for ten-year-old boys to lie in bed. He had seen the doctor swim across a wide, swift river, he knew the doctor could lift him with two fingers; he knew the doctor liked little boys and liked to help them all he could. In his boy mind the doctor was a hero. "Yes, sir (the boy was speaking), if you say we have to fight, I'll do just what you say. It is hard not to get to play after school (a tear rolled down and lost itself in the sheet near the boy's ear), but I can put my clothes on, can't I?" The doctor nodded, and, forgetting about medicine, plunged into another story of next summer. He talked for almost an hour to the boy. Which was also not exactly ethical. But when he rose to go he noticed a new light in the young eyes. "I think we will have Jimmie out playing in about two weeks," he said to the anxious mother. And as he threw his car into "high," a listener might have heard him humming softly as was his habit when his heart was not heavy.—Indianapolis News.

Days are said to resemble the hairs of our heads to the extent of being numbered. The only other resemblance is that they get sticky in hot weather. Days are still within the reach of all and no costlier than heretofore, but big nights always did come high. The present day is the only one of any real use, but as we look about us we see that it is the least valued. This proves that humans are somehow superior creatures to the brutes. The weather is the garment of the day and most of us take a neat dresser. But days are something like people and occasionally one whose personal appearance might be improved is yet able to make us happy.—Detroit Journal.

Two Ideals in Statuary.

One scarcely realizes, until he comes into personal contact with South American institutions and people, the difference of traditional ideals with which North and South America were founded. While through our parks and commons in New England we find statues of the early Pilgrim fathers with a staff in his hand and the Bible under his arm, here in these republics we find in the parks the mailed warrior with lance and sword, the emblem of the Spanish adventurer who first came to drive out the Indians from his possessions, to loot his gold and to place upon the country and its inheritance the stamp of his ruthless ambitions.—Christian Herald.

Transformation.

"Does Claude Algernon recite poetry?"

"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne.

"I'll keep away. I don't care for poetry."

"Oh, I'm sure you'd approve of him. It doesn't sound a bit like poetry when Claude Algernon recites it."

Reopening an Argument.

Wife—I could find but one pencil about the whole house, and, of course, the point was broken off. But I managed to sharpen it, with much effort.

Hub—And you didn't use much else beside your teeth, did you?

We know a lot of men who always grumble about hard times, yet they would consider it an insult if they were offered a job.

It is the rankest kind of folly for a man to expect the world to grow better until he begins to notice improvement in himself.

Imitation may be the sincerest flattery, but the proprietor of a patent medicine is never flattered when the druggist offers something "just as good."

HAMID'S SHOWS TO EXHIBIT IN CANFIELD

Advance representatives of Hamid's Oriental Shows were in Canfield Wednesday arranging with the city officials for license, etc., so that they could transport their aggregation here on the date of May 8th when they will open up a three ring circus in all its overshadowing vastness to the astonished gaze of an interesting public. This is the only motorized show on the road today. They travel exclusively via the chug chug wagons, and carry an army of two hundred people with them. The representatives were gentlemen—fellows, clean cut and courteous, and if the advance representation is a criterion to the appointment of the show, Canfield will be treated to an immaculate production, if the circus is given a date in the city. The representatives traveled in their own automobile, and displayed those characteristics while in Canfield that will win friends for themselves and their show wherever they locate to give a performance.
